STANDARD CLARIFICATION NOTES

The following clarifications form an integral part of this SCO and shall apply uniformly to all transactions conducted under any SCO issued by Golden Falcon Energy L.L.C. in accordance with its standard trading procedure.

Loading Port. The final loading port is confirmed upon completion of preliminary agreements and Seller's final confirmation. This is standard practice and does not indicate any limitation on Seller's supply capability.

Product Allocation. Our supply is sourced directly from refineries and officially allocated upstream suppliers operating under established international trading practices. Allocation is reserved for Buyers who have satisfied the agreed financial commitments under the SPA.

Nature of the SCO. This SCO is issued solely to present the principal commercial terms of the offer. Full contractual terms, conditions, and obligations are set out exclusively in the SPA; it is not standard practice to incorporate such detail into the SCO or its transaction procedure.

Settlement Basis. Settlement terms are determined by our internal risk management policy and standard transaction procedure, applied consistently across destinations. Any deviation from discharge-port settlement reflects our risk assessment and is not negotiable on a case-by-case basis.

SPA Execution. The draft SPA is submitted by Golden Falcon Energy L.L.C to the Buyer for review, comment, and confirmation of terms. The transaction is managed exclusively by Golden Falcon Energy L.L.C throughout this stage; only upon finalization does Seller execute the SPA and forward the signed original for Buyer's countersignature.

PPOP Documentation. PPOP documents (Allocation Letter, Commitment to Supply, Certificate of Origin, Preformat Invoice, Statement of Availability, Product Quality Passport) are not intended as a basis for LC issuance. Their purpose is solely to evidence Seller's allocation, supply capability, and readiness to perform. The LC is issued strictly in accordance with the executed SPA and agreed commercial terms.

(The Allocation Letter is issued by the refinery, and the buyer can verify it directly.)

DLC/SWIFT Structure. The requirement for the DLC to be irrevocable, divisible and non-transferable (per SWIFT MT700, governed by UCP 600) reflects Seller's standard risk-management framework and is not evidence of brokerage activity or lack of product availability or financial capability. Final LC structure is determined by the creditworthiness of the issuing bank, transaction risk, and agreed commercial terms; requirements may be simplified where the issuing bank is an internationally recognized prime bank.

Performance Bond. Issuance of the Performance Bond is conditional upon Seller's receipt of the confirmed DLC. The transaction cannot proceed to this stage absent DLC issuance.

ATB (Authority to Board). ATB is issued in accordance with the operational procedures of the relevant loading terminal, port authority, or vessel operator. The absence of a predefined specimen format does not affect its validity or issuance.

ATS/ATSC. An ATS or ATSC is not a universally required instrument for the sale or transfer of petroleum products. Applicable ownership and title-transfer documentation is determined by Seller's supply chain and the agreed transaction structure, and is provided in accordance with the executed SPA.

Loading Attendance & Title Transfer. The Buyer's authorized representative may attend the loading operation and witness the independent SGS inspection at the loading terminal. Upon completion of loading and receipt of payment at the loading port, the complete set of original cargo and title documents shall be issued in the Buyer's name, thereby transferring full documentary title in accordance with the agreed transaction procedure.

ACCEPTANCE

Should the foregoing terms and conditions be acceptable, the Buyer is kindly requested to duly execute this Soft Corporate Offer by way of signature and corporate stamp, and to return the same to the Seller as formal and binding confirmation of acceptance. Upon receipt of the duly executed offer, the Seller shall proceed to issue the Sales and Purchase Agreement (SPA) in accordance with the Transaction Procedure set forth herein.

Best regards,
